1. The Georgi Dimitrov Plant in Burgas for the production of iron products and machines which was formerly called "Zeriga" is 1.5 km east of the Burgas Bay. The Sofia-Burgas railroad line passes about 800 m west of the plant, and the line going to Kumluk ^(sic) passes south of the plant. A railroad track branches on the Kumluk - Burgas line leading to the plant. The plant covers an area of five decare* and there are eight factory buildings. The buildings are surrounded by a three m high concrete wall. The plant produces nails, barbed wire, electric wire, horseshoes, telegraph wire, canal pipes, and small agricultural machines. Large agricultural machines were produced up to 1950, but lately they have not been produced because of the high cost. The plant has 480 workers living in Burgas. There are no living quarters for the workers around the factory. Only about 15 women are among these workers. There are three entrances to the factory from all the three sides. The enclosed sketch shows details. The director of the plant is Yordan Yanev, former chairman of the Fatherland Front in Burgas. His assistant is Gancho Simeonov. The technical director is Todor GREGOROV. All are Communists.
